

Help us improve understanding of parents' ongoing relationship with their baby following stillbirth

We are looking for parents of stillborn babies to take part in our study by completing an online questionnaire. Our study looks at how parents of stillborn babies maintain an ongoing bond or relationship with their baby. We are interested in how any ongoing relationship is expressed, whether it is shared with others, and whether it affects the way parents think about their baby.

You could provide valuable insight into parents' ongoing connection with their baby which, it is hoped, will foster a more compassionate and supportive response to parents following their loss, and could lead to recommendations being made about how to improve care packages in the future.

You can take part if:

- You are over 18 years old
- Your baby was stillborn at 24 weeks of pregnancy or later
- Your baby died more than 1 year ago
- You feel you have an ongoing relationship with your baby
