

Post:	Peripatetic Bereavement Support Practitioner
Reporting to:	Director of Bereavement Support & Education with day to day management by North Development Lead
Hours:	18.75 hours per week
Salary:	£28,000 p.a. (pro-rata) Fixed term contract to August 2019
Base:	Home based

Job Purpose:

Research indicates that effective child bereavement support (relating to child death and to bereaved children) can contribute to mitigating the potential negative impact of bereavement and help to improve family health outcomes. Child bereavement support in England is inconsistently available, with some pockets of high quality services, often in affluent areas able to sustain such services from voluntary income, while in other locations there is an absence of qualified bereavement support and no local strategy for supporting bereaved children or families following a child death.

Child Bereavement UK aims to tackle this inequality by developing and delivering a suite of high quality bereavement services for local health, education, social care and voluntary organisations in areas of deprivation and need in England.

The post holder will support CBUK's North Development Lead in developing, piloting and rolling out a bereavement pathway and package of services that will build and enhance the capacity of the child bereavement sector in these areas to support some of the most deprived families across the country.

Services will be developed that enhance the skills, systems, care pathways and partnerships within local health, educational and social care structures so that statutory provision is able to collaborate with the voluntary sector to ensure that bereaved children and families in deprived areas are able to access good quality bereavement support.

Principal responsibilities:

1. To work with Local Authorities, Social Services, Health, Education and Voluntary Sector organisations in the identified areas of deprivation until August 2019 to develop the infrastructure of child bereavement support services in the voluntary and statutory sectors through:
 - To develop and nurture networks of organisations involved in child bereavement, creating clear pathways for local child bereavement support.
 - To support the creation of Bereavement Advisory Groups in each target area, comprising champions from health, education, social care, local government and voluntary organisations, and families to shape local services.
 - To help to develop and deliver child bereavement training to all agencies across the area; where professional's roles bring them into contact with bereaved families.
 - On request, providing specialist services such as advice, consultancy, quality improvement, bespoke training for staff and volunteers, supervision, mentoring etc. in working towards the establishment of sustainable child bereavement support provision.

- To develop micro-sites for each of the designated areas, within Child Bereavement UK's website, that will support the children's workforce and promote interagency working and the identified pathways.
2. Developing and delivering a range of services for bereaved families, to include clear referral routes, building on existing services or establishing new activities to meet the needs identified by professionals and families in the Project Bereavement Advisory Groups:
 - To promote CBUK's bereavement services and resources to professionals and families and signpost to CBUK and other local service providers where available, with the aim of improving access for bereaved families to high quality bereavement support. These will include: CBUK website, CBUK support and information line, CBUK bookable telephone support CBUK drop-in facilities, CBUK school resources, e-learning training and Elephant's Tea Party.
 - Develop and implement drop-in / outreach bereavement support where required, in partnership with local agencies e.g. Children's Centres, schools.
 - To develop local capacity by training, supporting and supervising staff and volunteers in local partner agencies to develop family bereavement support programmes.
 3. Maintaining monitoring and evaluation systems to measure the outcomes and impact of the project.
